What struck me most about this book was not so much the claim that a craft and its alien occupants had landed at Capel Green near RAF Bentwaters in Suffolk, but the level of determination and personnel anguish to prove it, by author and direct witness, ex military policeman Larry Warren and co-author Peter Robbins .
What actually did happen at Rendlesham Forest in December 1980 ?
Why did so many people connected with the event suffer physical and mental breakdowns ?
Why was the suicide rate at bentwaters the highest in the whole of NATO ?
Why was direct experiencer Larry Warren and his colleagues, who also witnessed the event further "meddled with" by possible National Security agency personnel, during a physical abduction underground not long after the craft and its occupants had been seen ?
In an attempt to answer those very questions Warren and Robbins embarked on a long arduous journey covering 16 years, 2 continents, knockback, threats and the eventual social disintegration of everything that was important to them .
Everything that is, except for the truth !
I have nothing but admiration and respect for the men here who not only had to live with their experiences and come to terms with what the majority of people would rather not know, but who managed to so eloquently write this compelling and disturbing book, in which they patiently and inexhaustibly take us through, both real and circumstantial evidence to show that what happened that night in December 1980 not only happened, but continues to this day .

TITLE: Left At East Gate. AUTHORS: Larry Warren & Peter Robbins. PUBLISHER: Michael O Mara Books Ltd, 9 Lion Yard Tremadoc Road, London, England, SW4 7NQ. PRICE: £15:99 (Hbk)

The first major discovery on this planet was the wheel, now comes the second most amazing discovery, "THIS BOOK" and the facts that it contains. This is such a riveting read, that you'll find it hard to put down. This book surely must rank as the most important and influential book of the last forty years. This is not an understatement, this is fact !! This book tells the story of the incident which occurred in Rendelsham Forest England back in 1980 by one of the people who was actually there, not a 'friend of a friend', but someone who was so close to what could well be a machine from another world. To try and do a small review on this book is well neigh impossible. The Rendelsham Forest affair is well known to seasoned UFOlogists, did a 'crash' and 'repair' of a UFO occur in this forest next to R.A.F. Bentwaters ? Witnesses claim to have seen a strange object rest above the grass, then zoom in and out through the trees. Small beings with large black cat-like eyes who 'floated' and conversed, [telepathically] with American Air-force personnel were also observed. Several of the witnesses to the events of that night, were the following day, de-briefed and shown cine film of UFOs at various locations throughout the world, (and also on the moon !). A Commander Nicholson then told the men, that what they had seen in the forest, represented technology far superior to our own, and that the Government (American), has known about it for some time. !

Larren Warren, co-author of this book, was a security policeman at RAF Bentwaters, he witnessed one of the nights events, (it happened over three nights) and was later "drugged", and taken to an underground base at RAF Bentwaters where he claims to have seen similar UFOs and conversed [telepathically], with a grey 'being' who told him numerous things, including that they, the aliens, have bases on the Earth, and have been here since WW11. "Religion was created for the human race", he was told, a statement that really unnerved young 19 year old Larry. Larry decided to try and speak out about what was quickly turning out to be a 'whitewash' of that night's events, and went on a one man crusade in order to get people to learn about what happened. Indeed, Larry's eyesight was impaired after seeing this UFO in the woods. This book tells the story of how Larry Warren and later his co-author Peter Robbins had to struggle with authority to try to get to the bottom of this, in which they were thwarted at every turn. Both Larry and Peter believe that their phones were tapped, probably by the NSA (National Security Agency). Helicopters overflew Larry's property filming and taking photographs of his house. During all this time, Larry was receiving 'visits' by small 'beings' who would enter his apartment then dissolve. !

We then pick up on Colonel Charles Halt and his role in one of the night's proceedings, he also saw the 'beings' and made a live audio tape as he and his men pressed on through the woods that night in search of this object. A copy of this tape was later sold by Dot Street and Brenda Butler (British researchers of this case), to the News Of The World for £2,000. Indeed, Manchester lawyer and UFO researcher Harry Harris, also sold a copy of the Halt tape for $2,000 to Nippon T.V. "no comment" !

Early British Investigation of this case in 1983 by Ian Mrzyglod and Martin Shipp, concluded that this case did not require further Investigation !! Boy, were they ever wrong or what !! The book continues with Larry's struggle to get at the truth, but I was amazed to learn that Larren had managed to photograph an 'alien' albeit inadvertently, on a holiday snap, why wasn't this photograph included in this book !! Larry was none to fond of Jenny Randles, Dot Street, and Brenda Butler's attempt at a book on this event, which British readers will know as "Skycrash", Larry read it, then called it "Skytrash" due to certain statements and comment !! The book then goes into cloudbusting would you believe, and devices of this kind, were found at RAF Bentwaters, Peter and Larry speculate that a large cloudbusting device, may have been the real reason for the tremendous damage caused to various parts of the forest and other areas of England in October 1987. One of the most amazing chapters for this reviewer, comes when we read about Larry and Peter's return to Rendelsham Forest back in 1988, for, would you believe, on their first night there, (8 years on from the main event), they are no sooner in the forest, when they start seeing UFOs. A transcript of that night is given, and it's riveting stuff I can tell you, especially when a "Wall of light" illuminates the woods, which is similar to what occurred in the recent Scottish "Fife Incident" Investigated by Strange Phenomena Investigations (SPI). Larry's quest to find the truth, see's the break up of his marriage and an attempted suicide bid, but eventually through the help of some good friends, he sees the light and realises that he must go on, that there is so much still to be done.

The book then goes into the role played by the NSA The National Security Agency, and co-author Peter Robbins, does a tremendous job of bringing some home truths about this organisation, with facts that will shock you to the roots. It's fair to say, that both Larry and Peter were slightly frightened of agents from the organisation, as Larry had found himself the focus of their attention. Peter Robbins sums up by saying that trying to get to the truth of what went on that night, was like trying to fight a tank with a spiders web, (I liked that one). But was this incident all but one big drug induced event !! We know that after they were de-briefed, they could have been fed some drugs or some hypnosis could have been used during the de-briefing !! drugs and/or hypnosis that might have led them to believe that what they saw was a UFO with 'alien beings', but why Peter tells us that RAF Bentwaters and Woodbridge, secretly housed the largest stockpile of tactical battlefield nuclear weapons in the whole of the NATO infrastructure, and that RAF Greenham Common, the site of many antinuclear demonstrations, was in fact, only a diversion and cover. If something happened to those missiles, its fair to say that the Americans would not want this getting out, and so covertly conjured up this false scenario as a cover. That's just pure speculation on my part however Colonel Charles Halt says, "There are more things that went on in that forest that night, than you'll ever know" ! What on earth does he mean !!

This book is a giant. This book will be a best seller, there's no doubt about that. For once you read this, you will be left in no doubt that something of immense importance occurred in those woods that night, and Larry Warren and Peter Robbins are to be congratulated for an extremely important and 'Earth-shattering' book, which I can honestly see being made into a film.

Buy this book, and see what I'm raving about, you won't be disappointed.

BOOK REVIEW: LEFT AT EAST GATE by Ernie Sears

Southampton UFO Group Magazine, June 1997

"LEFT AT EAST GATE" by authors Larry Warren and Peter Robbins landed in my hands on Tuesday June 3rd 1997 from publisher Michael O'Mara Books Limited. By that same evening I'd been unable to put it down until read! Gripping? Sensational? Both understatements!

Maybe the jacket "blurbs" said it better.. 'Dynamite', 'compelling', 'unique' ..and, more to my own eventual feelings, 'unsettling'!

Just under 500 pages long, and while you don't HAVE to believe it, the mass of facts, evidence, and most of all, the desperate determination of the authorities to initially deny it all, and the efforts to "prove" that Larry Warren didn't even exist, the crazy "answers" that witnesses had confused "lighthouse beams" for an oddly shaped landed craft that threw off rays and assorted colours, that left imprints, that contained three "entities", that was audio taped by the deputy base commander, that was filmed, that caused a sense of non-reality to onlookers, that caused panic stricken animals to flee their habitat (ie: deer, rabbits, and such), force you to accept that something strange happened in Rendlesham Forest in late December 1980. Previous books on the incident pale into insignificance beside this one. I sat, stunned, as the implications finally sunk into my mind!

Memorable quotes* from "Left at East Gate" include: 'screwing up the lives of young airmen had been necessary...a matter of National Security', and: 'America is quietly becoming a National Security State where keeping secrets has proven to be more important than safeguarding the most decent aspects of democracy' ...and so on! Shades of those X Files!

Buy, or borrow from your library, whatever, this new book. Never mind the hassle it may get, or has already had. There are items in it never before seen in print that Warren and his fellow airmen kept quiet out of fear, for years. Make up your own mind when you have read every word!

If, like me, you've had actual experiences with the enigma, it has the answers. At least until someone comes up with a better one. Me? I'm going to stir, afresh, the powers that be in high places, among others, by all the avenues available and affordable!

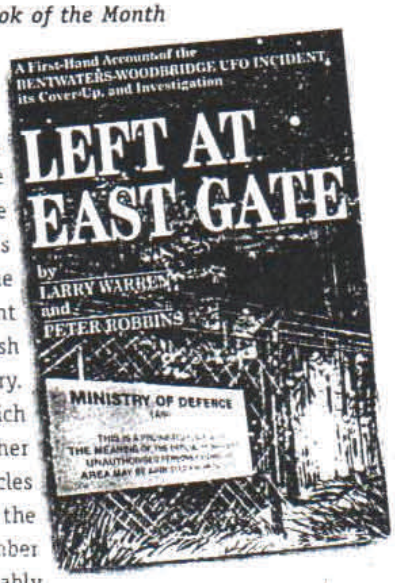

The truth really IS "out there"! It's also in this book, for the price of £15.99.

Book of the Month

This book is, as the last one isn't. The Rendlesham Forest UFO case (see the feature this issue) is arguably the most important episode in British Ufological history. This book, which (amongst other things) chronicles the events of the 26-28th December 1980, is probably the most important book in British Ufological history. It is also (unusually for a book of this magnitude) a damn good read. Subject matter apart, there are a number of other rather impressive things about it.

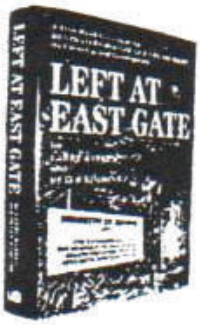

SIGHTINGS

Larry Warren did have a unique series of experiences, but in this book he places them into the context of his own life. He is almost painfully honest about both his actions and reactions, but by the end of the book you not only believe his account implicitly but also end up liking the bloke, warts and all.

When he started working with Peter Robins he gave him carte blanche to write whatever he wanted, and to disprove his (Warren's) story if possible. Robbins did his best but couldn't shake his story and the two men became firm friends. This book is an essential purchase and should be on the bookshelves of anyone even slightly interested in the subject as a whole.

REVIEW BOOK

It is a sad fact that this book has taken 17 years to be released, but now that it has, the UFO community will at last know the truth behind the events that happened in Rendlesham Forest on December 28th, 1980.

Eyewitness Larry Warren has teamed up with researcher Peter Robbins to relate the exact happenings of that fateful night when an entire military troop stumbled across a UFO and its occupants. The very next day, a massive cover-up operation began to silence the men and ensure no details of the encounter leaked out to the general public.

This is not a work of fiction, it is a well-documented presentation of the facts. The evidence is literally mind-boggling, and should be shouted from the highest towers to all mankind.

Americans have long been obsessed with extraterrestrial activity, but when it comes to inexplicable stuff happening in the sky, we're hardly alone. For three consecutive nights in December 1980, the joint U.S. and British Air Force bases of Bentwaters and Woodbridge in Suffolk, England, were swamped with reports of mysterious lights and otherworldly occurrences in a nearby forest. What really happened there continues to inspire fierce debate and speculation. One of the Mulderesque theories: UFOs landed, contact with extraterrestrial life occurred and the government covered up the whole thing. In Left at East Gate, UFO-ologist Peter Robbins and Larry Warren, a former U.S. Air Force security policeman and purported eyewitness, present a provocative–and somewhat disturbing–overview of the case and its possible ramifications. Robbins' lectures may not confirm that the truth is out there, but he'll no doubt try to come close–barring any unforeseen close encounters, of course. (Chris Cummins)

Haunting encounter leads to book

By KAREY SOLOMON
Special to The Journal

ON December 28, 1980, a young American serviceman on guard duty at a NATO base in England saw odd lights in a nearby forest and joined a group of military personnel who had gathered to observe the strange phenomena.

"It looked like a ground fog but was somehow lit up from within," writes Larry Warren in "Left at Eastgate," a book he wrote with Peter Robbins, just published by Marlowe & Co.

"It glowed very brightly, with the definition of a roughly shaped circle approximately one foot in height... As my mind tried to register what I was looking at, the ball of light exploded in a blinding flash.... The explosion produced no noticeable heat. But now, right in front of me was a machine occupying the space where the fog had been..."

Peter Robbins

The experiences Warren had that night and the next were to haunt him ever afterward.

Warren says that although a large group of people witnessed the incident, they were officially warned to keep silent about it. The following night, he and another airman were taken to an underground facility at the base where he was interviewed by "a being from a place I would never understand."

Two days later, he stumbled back to his dorm, feeling "I'd left part of my soul underground."

His obsession with these events led to his separation from the military and may have been partly responsible for his descent into the personal hell of self-destructive behavior, alcohol abuse and a failed marriage.

Warren's story is a compelling read, and if it inspires more questions than it answers, "We're asking people to read it and make up your mind," says co-author Robbins.

Robbins, a former teacher and theater manager who now lives in Trumansburg, says he didn't set out to prove anything. "We simply follow the trail as far as we're capable."

It took Warren and Robbins more than nine years of research, reflection and recollection to write "Left at Eastgate."

They met at a UFO conference in 1987.

Robbins, who with his sister experienced a "daylight sighting" as a child in Trumansburg, suppressed the memory for many years. In 1975, when the recollection of the event returned, he became interested in investigating similar happenings.

In the course of their work on this book, Warren and Robbins revisited the site in England several times, took photographs and soil samples, followed a paper trail of military documents, talked to some of Warren's fellow military personnel and UFO researchers, as well as "ordinary" people who recall extraordinary encounters with beings from other worlds.

"The bottom line is we're not alone. Other intelligences come and go for reasons we can only guess at. They have likely affected our civilization from time immemorial. So what else is new?" Robbins says.

Why would intelligent beings from a more advanced civilization be interested in Earth?

"That's the most-often asked question," Robbins says. "Because our planet is a great rarity — perhaps rare enough to be of compelling interest. Are we the most interesting show in town? Imagine you were Margaret Mead in space... Maybe they're us a million years in the future."

In some respects, the encounters Warren may have had with another life form is not the central issue.

"It's much more a book about abuse of power, the way our intelligence-keeping facilities do not serve we the people," Robbins says.

Warren's personal history since the event is a woeful tale in which he appears to have been very badly treated by the government agencies he called on for help.

Wary of misinterpretation, for many years Warren withheld the part of his story dealing with his alleged abduction. He is careful not to use the word "aliens" in his recollections; in fact, near the conclusion of their research, Warren and Robbins heard an entirely different scenario suggested as the guiding force for these events.

"Ironically," Robbins says dryly, "the more terrestrial conclusion is the more shattering."

Whether or not one believes the stories of those who say they've experienced UFOs and encounters with non-human life forms, the work of Robbins and Warren seems meant to turn us around to take a more critical look at ourselves.

"This is not a UFO book," Robbins says. "It touches upon the subject with some depth, but what this book is really about is people." ❑

Book details UFO sighting near NATO bases in '80

Star-Gazette

Peter Robbins says he once had a way of dealing with those who say they've seen an alien spacecraft.

"One approaches them as if they are not stable," says the author, who signs a new book about just such an encounter on Sunday at Barnes & Noble.

In 1984, he was approached by Larry Warren, who had been an airman first class as part of NATO forces based at Royal Air Force stations 70 miles from London.

Just before Christmas in 1980, tensions were high on those bases, RAF Bentwaters and RAF Woodbridge. Soviet troops were poised on the border of Poland, where the Solidarity labor movement was gaining strength. And the NATO bases were commonly believed to be sites for nuclear arms storage, in full violation of U. S. treaties with Great Britain.

Yet on-base security personnel — including Warren — were told to surround a local farmer's field, shrouded by ground fogs.

They witnessed a circular self-illuminated object, 50 feet in diameter and a foot off the ground, and small humanoids. The event became the subject of a special investigation by then-fledging CNN correspondent Chuck DeCarro.

Warren and the other security guards, debriefed by Office Naval Intelligence and the National Security Agency, were forbidden to speak of the incident to anyone.

"Larry is a natural whistleblower," Robbins says. "It's not a pose. Maybe it's naivete that says if something's broken, it should be fixed."

In person

Peter Robbins signs copies of "Left at East Gate" (1997, Marlowe & Company, $24.95) from 3 to 4 p.m. Sunday at Barnes & Noble Booksellers, Consumer Square, Big Flats.

The result of the meeting between Robbins and Warren, "Left at East Gate" details the events of the phenomenon and the response of the military to Warren's disclosures. That response led the pair to seek legal counsel. They secured it, pro bono, from former U. S. Attorney General Ramsay Clark.

Robbins believes that a full investigation into the incident, and the military's and NSA's reaction, "could force the first Congressional investigation in 30 years."

For Robbins, it seems "Left At East Gate" is less about an encounter with the unknown, and more about an encounter between an individual and an institution.

"It violates the most precious aspect of our democracy, freedom for those who have the courage — and the recklessness — and maintain what happened to them did happen," he says.

A First Hand Account of the BENTWATERS-WOODBRIDGE UFO INCIDENT, its Cover-Up, and Investigation
Marlowe & Co. New York March 1997 512 pages

Book Review by Morley Legg

The Bentwaters incident in Britain appears to be our first multi-witnessed account of contact between the military and an alien life form in a landed UFO.

On December 29, 1980, RAF Bentwaters in Suffolk was placed on alert (for one reason, the Soviets were on the brink of moving armoured units into Poland) and at 1.30 am groups of fully armed men were being mobilised at various locations. A US NATO group was disarmed and ordered to advance towards an object which had descended into a strange ground fog. Security Guard Larry Warren felt as if a vacuum was slowing his movements, and when a red light dropped out of the sky into the fog there was a blinding flash and a strange machine about 30 feet by 20 feet appeared within the fog. A ball of light containing alien figures was approached by Colonel Gordon Williams, the Base Wing Commander, and some form of communication may have taken place.

Larry Warren begins the book by recounting the human story of his younger days, his playing in rock bands and joining the US Air Force. He alludes only briefly to his childhood UFO experiences, some of which were witnessed by his mother. By the time he has been transferred as a member of the USAF Security Police to RAF Bentwaters, and become accustomed to base life, the reader feels involved with him, particularly when the bizarre events begin to unfold over the three nights in late December 1980.

The day after the main incident all personnel involved were debriefed and told that a number of alien civilisations were visiting our planet, and that some were "a permanent presence here." All were ordered not to discuss what they had seen. "Bullets are cheap," they were warned. The next morning, Larry Warren, 19 years, took the naive precaution of going to a phone box and calling his mother in New York about the UFO landing. The line went dead.

He was charged and fined for this breach of security. That night he and other witnesses were taken to an underground facility and returned with an impaired memory of the time he spent there. His duties returned to normal, but he realised that the Air Force was not for him. After be assured he could rejoin later if he wished he gained an honourable discharge and returned to the US.

Courtesy of PHENOMENA MAGAZINE

Larry reveals that what he had witnessed, as well as his experience in the underground facility, affected him deeply, as it did other witnesses, and for years his life was disrupted. His wife Cindy could not cope with his growing obsession with the Bentwaters mystery and the marriage disintegrated. He was also contacted by men identifying themselves as agents of the NSA who warned him of reprisals and to forget the matter. Despite such threats he contacted a UFO group and began to speak out, even at MUFON conferences. At one of these he heard Peter Robbins speak and felt he was the man to help him write about the Bentwaters incident.

The central theme of Left at East Gate is the human story of Larry's fall from grace after his experiences, and then, with the special abilities of Peter Robbins, the progress in contacting other witnesses, and further confirmation of the incident's reality.

As Peter's story entwines with Larry's a third of the way through, we learn much of the history of UFO studies plus the detective work involved in following leads, dealing with leaked documents, with finding their phones bugged, and how informed and skilled researchers need to become to cope with the powerhouse rhetoric, deception and intimidating tactics of those involved in the cover-up. Much of the research is backed up with letters, documents, appendix pages, news reports, 16 pages of photographs, and transcripts of taped interviews.

The transcripts inject immediacy into the flow of the story and indicate the personal courage involved in confronting Colonel Halt, the Deputy Base Commander at Bentwaters, either on the phone or at a meeting with him in the shadow of the Pentagon. Halt readily admits to being a witness to some of the events but remains adept at denigrating Warren's version of events.

Preceding one transcript, Peter writes, "I do remember making an almost immediate mental note that I would not like to play poker with this man ...Halt's expression remained fixed for the next hour and twenty minutes. He made very little eye contact and was unrelentingly serious." In being cross examined Halt proved consistently engaging in his admissions and denials, but on occasions, to say things off the record, he would order the tape to be switched off. It is only at the end of the book that one hopes to find clues to what he and the others had discussed. Were US nuclear bombs being held on the base without the official knowledge of Her Majesty's government? Was Warren right in saying that Base Wing Commander Gordon Williams was present at the landing when Colonel Halt flatly insisted that he wasn't? We realise of course that Colonel Halt was officially present to dispel any notion that there are deep tunnels beneath Bentwaters, and the claim that UFOs fired laserlike beams of light through the hardened bunkers to where the nuclear bombs were stored?

In contrast to the dogged research undertaken in the US, the authors often struck luck during their six trips to Britain. We appreciate their desperate humour, captured on tape, when at night they trespassed beyond warning signs, and found the place in the Rendlesham Forest where the craft had landed. The mark remains after 16 years. The family they chanced to board with in the vicinity of Bentwaters had seen a UFO themselves, had heard about the event, and were eager to drive them to key points, contacts and witnesses.

It so happened that I began reading Budd Hopkins' Witnessed -- The Story of the Brooklyn Bridge UFO Abductions along side Left at East Gate. Although they focus on different incidents, they share a revelation worthy of comment. Firstly Hopkins founded the Intruders Foundation, a New York-based research group, where Peter Robbins is Executive Assistant. Where Witnessed reveals the invasive inroads alien intelligence has made into a family, Left at East Gate unearths the details of a contact between an alien intelligence and the military at a NATO base.

When such sensational material appears in a book it is advantageous to know the author. Peter and I have been corresponding since 1989 and during that period he has written about his collaboration with Larry Warren. Whereas as I forwarded to him our ASPR Journal, newsletters, and reports, he forwarded photocopied material and a tape of a conversation talk he gave on Bentwaters. The tape displays the unhurried qualities, the thoroughness and integrity with which he tackles a subject. One can sense why Larry Warren chose him.

It has been suggested that the UFO incident at Bentwaters could have been a military test to confront troops with a hologram, perhaps in the hope of attributing all sightings to such technology. Peter arranged for Hopkins to regress Larry Warren to the time he was taken underground and the transcript does suggest attempts at mind control. Colonel Halt made several allusions to mind control and remote viewing. But of course UFO encounters have long been reported all over the world where there is no military presence at all. And if aliens can abduct ordinary (and extraordinary) people, they could also penetrate the highest military security at Bentwaters, and the Air Force would be loath to admit it. In any case Warren and Robbins have employed their own scepticism throughout, wondering at times when luck seems to be running their way, if they are being stage managed or set up for disinformation.

There is a refreshing triumph at the end of this book. It emerges in the depth of humanity; the caring, trust, and fair play in summing up. Just when we are softened by this, the awesome questions arise concerning democracy being taken from us. They are tossed like javelins -- at us ordinary citizens, at the NSA, and those who don't want to know, to face these questions, to wake up and take some responsibility for what we are, and where we are going.

Larry Warren and Peter Robbins are to be congratulated for finally succeeding in bringing fresh insight to a unique experience in human history, an experience that highly paid teams of experts, for over a decade, were trying to prevent them from disclosing.

BOOK REVIEW

LEFT AT EAST GATE by Larry Warren and Peter Robbins. A first-hand account of the Bentwaters - Woodbridge UFO incident, its cover-up and investigation. (Michael O'Mara Books, 1997 - £15.99)

This is, in a sense, two books in one. There is the autobiographical account of his life, before, during and after the incident by Larry Warren and there is also an account by Peter Robbins of his researches over ten years, seeking confirmation of his co-author's claims. The contribution of each is distinguished typographically, Robbins' work being printed wholly in italic - not a happy solution, as it tires the eyes. A different font would have served the purpose better..

The Rendlesham incidents have sometimes and with reason been dubbed "The British Roswell", for although the human participants were all members of the armed forces of the USA, the actual incidents all occurred in British territory or airspace, outside the limits of the RAF bases on lease to the Americans, who were using them to store their main supplies of tactical nuclear weapons. December 1980 was, it will be recalled, a time of some international stress, with Soviet forces massing on the Polish frontier as the Solidarity trade union made its bid for power.

UFOs pouring down energy beams into the weapons storage area, with one apparently malfunctioning and threshing about in Rendlesham forest; the same or another surrounded by US forces, emitting harmful radiations as its occupants allegedly arranged with the local commander for technical help - this was the scenario generally depicted. Remarkably, none of this was subsequently held by the British MoD to be of any military significance.

Larry Warren emerges from his book as a credible witness, a stubborn "whistle-blower" whose revelations brought him involvement with the NSA and inevitable grief, while the painstaking and well-documented researches of his co-author wrestle bravely but inconclusively with the web of half-truths and intelligence cover-up in which the happenings have become enwrapped.

We don't even know the exact dates the main events occurred, but it is clear that the governments concerned are determined to keep hidden from their respective peoples for as long as possible the truth about these happenings: we can only suppose, therefore, that this truth would, if revealed, be a cause for considerable concern.

Left at East Gate - Larry Warren and Peter Robbins

Michael O'Mara £15.99

Everyone has heard of the Roswell incident, the UFO sighting which happened in New Mexico exactly 50 years ago. But not many people realise that there is evidence of another alien landing which occurred less than 20 years ago in East Anglia.

In 1980, Larry Warren was a US Air Force security guard stationed at the RAF airbase in Rendlesham Forest, East Anglia. From 26th to 29th December, RAF Bentwaters and Woodbridge air bases had nightly visits of unusual flying objects. At first the lights were thought to be from an aircraft that had gone down in the vast expanse of pine forest, and the men were ordered to investigate.

On the night of December 28th, Warren drove into the forest with other security personnel. He then saw what he believes to have been a UFO and its occupants on the ground.

"As my mind tried to register what I was looking at, the ball of light exploded in a blinding flash. Shards of light and particles fell onto the fog. Several cops ran into the woods. I couldn't move: I tried to cover my eyes, but it was too late. Now, right in front of me was a machine occupying the spot where the fog had been."

Warrens and Robbins are visiting cities around Britain to tell their story and to meet people who have had similar experiences. This book is the result of these experiences and the research of the two authors trying to prove the truth as they see it.

Book sparks UFO interest

INTEREST in the UFO sighting at Rendlesham Forest, near Woodbridge, has been rekindled by a recent book written by one of the eyewitnesses.
Woodbridge Books has sold nearly 200 copies of Larry Warren's first-hand account entitled Left At East Gate since it went on sale this summer.
The shop in the Thoroughfare sold 100 copies in 90 minutes when Mr Warren and his co-author, Peter Robbins, attended a book-signing session.
Now the shop has organised a second signing session on August 23 from 11am until 12.30pm to satisfy demand from the public to meet the authors and discuss the puzzling events in 1980 close to RAF Woodbridge.

Why would any sane individual go to such great lengths to tell such a story if it weren't true? Larry Warren will help anyone with an open mind to open their eyes and ears, thanks Larry. AW

For anyone who want's to know what really happened in December 1980 at the Bentwaters/Woodbridge base needs to begin here. This is a very honest account detailed by someone who was there. Peter also did a fantastic job pulling the pieces together and recounting his own experiences. Larry and Peter thank you very much! The world makes a bit more sense because of your efforts. Many others who were also there and, as we know, have been coming forth to tell their versions and their stories about these events. But they ALL owe you guys a debt of gratitude for being the first to take the plunge and go public. I enjoyed the background on your life and all of the little details that helped paint the picture as real as possible.

Warren and Robbins raise a lot of questions in this narrative of Larry Warren's experiences at R.A.F. Bentwaters base in late 1980. Reading this book leaves you feeling no doubt that something of extreme importance happened to at least twenty military policeman at the base over the course of three nights. There were local witnesses from outside the base also who observed strange light anomalies in the area during those nights. What really happened at Bentwaters? We don't know exactly but something related to UFOs occurred there leaving indelible, bizarre memories in the witnesses.

Reading this book makes you sympathize with experiencers like Warren who have nowhere to go to share their experiences. They are subject to ridicule, psychological stress, and threats from the military and government black operations. Surely, we as a society can do better than the type of treatment Warren received. After all, when he went out to that remote clearing in the woods that fateful night, along with his comrades, he was doing his job which was to protect the base, one of the largest storehouses of U.S. nuclear weapons in Europe.

This is the most complete book on the Bentwaters case and vividly demonstrates the need for us to get to the truth about UFO phenomenon. The book is somewhat rambling at times but covers every aspect of Warren's encounter in detail. Coauthor Peter Robbins adds a voice of credulity to the whole affair. Overall, this book will inform you, make you mad, and leave you curious and wondering how large our universe really is and who inhabits it with us.

Larry and I went to school together. We were close in Junior high, but drifted apart when he went into the military. He had mentioned the Bentwaters thing, but never went into too much detail. I knew a lot of guys who went in the military relatively sane and came out messed up. After reading his book, I was left with a fascinating insight as to what he went through these past years. Regardless of how you feel about UFO's or the government, you should read this book. Have patience, read the whole thing. Then try to figure out why the rest of us just sit around and let things like this happen while a certain very few contend with all the whacko's out there to attempt to open the public's eyes. Sorry Larry, the rest of the world prefers to stay sleeping.

Well written and interesting throughout. I was working in the WSA at Bentwaters on D Flight during the UFO sightings. I remember the radio transmissions and most of the people working during that time. Warren and Robbins clarify what were only rumours during the those strange nights following Christmas, 1980. Since reading the book, I've contacted several former D Flight members and encouraged them to buy 'Left at East Gate'.

I was scanning the library shelves here in Manhattan for something to read for a wintry weekend. Wow! This book scared the hell out of me. For some of the detractors I've read here, were you reading the same book? What chilled me is that Larry Warren is such a down-to-earth guy. He could have sought fame and fortune some other way than baring his experiences here. And for doing so, he has fought a war against the military, the powerful federal agents who hide the secrets and hypocritical politicians and vicious old military officials. That something really did happen at Bentwaters-Woodbridge is no longer in question. Even some of Larry's enemies admit something incredible happened at the base. This has been documented in numerous documentaries and articles. I hope Larry and his terrific co-author, Peter Robbins, write a sequel and go more into detail about the nightmarish world beneath the military site. Larry has definitely showed enough guts and bravery to receive an award of some kind. I hereby create the UFO Hero of the Year Award to be presented to Larry Warren!

First of all this book undoubtably uncovers the REAL events at Bentwaters 1980! I do however sense there is more to come from this in the near future! We also need to remeber who was at this incident, Larry Warren. Peter Robbins is the researcher of this incident. To state in public that this man is a liar and con artist is a testimony of ones ignorance and in ability to see the forest for the trees! We cannot embark on this subject with a closed mind and ignore EVIDENCE that would be acceptable in any court of law. We should be thankful to Mr. Warren for having the courage to uncover this incident, for without him we would have no clue what happened in December 1980. I have the sense after reading this book that what would be considered UFO researchers are all behind the wall of denial and have only hindered the full dislosure of the Bentwaters incident. Larry is undoubtably the Frank Serpico of Ufology, bar none! Others who are hell bent to disparage Mr. Warrens character, should read more Bigfoot novels and leave the serious UFO research to the many people who are commited to uncovering the truth and not Character assasination. I believe his work in this book is brilliant and should be read worlwide! My hat is off to Larry, Peter I am sure is being well rewarded for his brilliant research ...no kudos needed there.

After reading the book, I purchased the CD-ROM version of the book at the Omega UFO Seminar where it was demonstrated. It is even better than the book, in the sense that you can see the authors visit the actual landing site on video, and see many more maps and photos. If you liked the book, then you'll probably love spending time with the CD-ROM version. Released by a NYC company called Software Sculptors.

This is Larry Warren's record of events prior to, during and following his airforce posting to the Bentwaters Airbase in England, during the early eighties.The book is obviously very carefully researched and the authors are meticulous in their attenpts to present the famous Bentwaters UFO landings as closely as human memory will allow.The book will not appease those who approach it with built-in preconceptions about the nature of reality and those whose thinking is imprisoned within a rigid framework.This has to be one of THE most important UFO landing cases, involving as it does the confirmatory evidence from military personnel from the Base Commander downwards

THE BIGGEST UFO BOOK OF 1997...

A First-Hand Account of the Bentwaters-Woodbridge UFO Incident, its Cover-Up, and Investigation

by Larry Warren and Peter Robbins

With more material evidence of an alien landing than was ever found at Roswell, the Bentwaters incident occurred less than twenty years ago in Great Britain, but, unlike Roswell, most people have never even heard of it. Left at East Gate is an eye-witness account of that dramatic incident.

In 1980, Larry Warren was an US Air Force security guard stationed at the RAF airbase in Rendlesham Forest, East Anglia. On the night of the UFO landing, he was ordered to 'drive to the east gate and turn left' to join other security personnel. He is convinced that what he then saw was a UFO and its occupants on the ground. The incident has since been denied by both US and UK military officials.

Every Briton should read their account of the evidence and the cover-up, and the even more worrying fact that these events all took place at a NATO nuclear arms store.

"I highly recommend this vitally important book."

The authors of Left at East Gate will be in Britain on publication for publicity, interviews and lectures nationwide.

THE ASTONISHING STORY that has been featured in Sci Fi and History Channel documentaries!

In December 1980, Larry Warren was a member of the Air Force security police stationed at RAF Bentwaters, a NATO base in Great Britain. On the night of the 28th he was on guard duty when he was taken by truck to join other Air Force personnel to investigate a disturbance in a Rendlesham Forest about five miles away, which turned out to be a landed UFO. This was the third night of UFO activity in the area and by far the most profound. When the men were debriefed the next day, they were warned to tell no one about what they had seen—as "bullets are cheap." And so began what would turn out to be the best documented and most significant military-UFO incident in history. This remarkable story, told with the help of investigative writer Peter Robbins, was the basis of the Sci Fi Channel's documentary UFO Invasion at Rendlesham and the History Channel's [title to be inserted later].

I couldn't move; I tried to cover my eyes, but it was too late. Now, right in front of me, was a machine occupying the spot where the fog had been."—Larry Warren, former USAF Security Specialist.

On three successive nights in late December 1980, England's rural Suffolk, East Anglia was the setting for what is now seen as the most significant military-UFO incident in the history of Great Britain. Left at East Gate is the most comprehensive account ever published on this—or any other such incident, and marks the first time an authentic, fully documented military eyewitness has co-authored such a book. His first-hand account is unlike anything you have ever read before. Nor does his account stand alone: physical evidence, official documentation, and the accounts of other military and civilian witnesses also appear here—many never before published.

In December 1980, Warren was a member of the Air Force Security Police stationed at RAF Bentwaters, one of Suffolk's largest NATO bases. On the night of December 28, he was on guard duty at a remote perimeter of the base, and it was there that he was taken by truck to join other Air Force personnel in a wooded area about five miles away. This was the third night of UFO activity: it would also prove to be the most shattering. The men were debriefed the next day and shown an extraordinary film. They also were ordered to sign statements contradicting what they had seen, warned to tell no one about it, and told that if they did, "Bullets are cheap." Shocking as the incident and debriefing had been, things were only getting started: American intelligence was about to enter the picture.

Despite the personal cost, Warren began to investigate the events on his own. In 1987, he was joined by an independent researcher, Peter Robbins. Nine years in preparation, Left At East Gate is the result of their collaborative investigation.

"This book is dynamite. Larry Warren and Peter Robbins have done an excellent job in blowing the lid off a UFO case that could be bigger and more sinister than Roswell. There is much in this book that will make you angry, and rightly so. It raises serious questions about just how far certain people will go to prevent the truth about UFOs ever becoming public knowledge. The book is meticulously researched, gripping, provocative, and will undoubtedly lead to some long overdue questions being asked at the highest levels. This is a sensational book, and no matter what the skeptics and debunkers may try, this is not going to go away." -- Nick Pope, Higher Executive Officer, British Ministry of Defense; author of Open Skies, Closed Minds.

"Warren's firsthand account of this event explodes with authentic detail. A riveting, fascinating and important book." -- Whitley Strieber, author of Breakthrough, Transformation and Communion.

"This is a powerful and compelling book, For me, its implicit central theme is the author's personal courage and relentless search for truth in the face of the official deception and attempts at direct intimidation. Warren and Robbins' narrative has the force of a well-told mystery novel, yet it is all disturbingly true. A major contribution to the literature." -- Budd Hopkins, UFO researcher, author of Missing Time, Intruders, and Witnessed, the True Story of the Brooklyn Bridge Abductions.

"The authors' research brings up the unsettling prospect that the UFO phenomenon might have made deeper inroads into human life than had been previously thought. They also uncover a clear example of government secrecy and abuse of power. They have included interviews with participants that give us new information about the government's heavy-handed attempts to whitewash what it knows about the Bentwaters case and to keep the witnesses from talking. The authors have brought clarity to the confusion surrounding this case."—Dr.David M. Jacobs, Ph.D., author of Secret Life and The UFO Controversy in America.

About the authors:

In 1983 Larry Warren became the first honorably discharged military witness to go public about the cover-up under his own name. He has lectured on the Bentwaters incidents extensively in the United States and Japan. Peter Robbins is the executive assistant for the Intruders Foundation. He has researched the subject of UFOs for more than twenty years and has lectured extensively.

SOME UNIQUE ASPECTS OF LEFT AT EAST GATE

Nine years of research and development have insured that Left at East Gate will be a unique publishing event in a number of respects. It is the most extensive account of a military /UFO incident and its military/intelligence cover-up ever published. The incident itself is generally considered to be the most significant in the history of the United Kingdom, and the most significant in the annals of the U.S. military.

Co-author Larry Warren is one of the event's central eye-witnesses, and was the first witness to go public with what he knew. His doing so was crucial to the story (first) breaking in England's News of the World on 2 October 1983. Interest in the Bentwaters incident is currently at an all-time high in Great Britain and Europe, and only on the increase here in the United States.

Warren left the Air Force with a fully honourable discharge in May 1981. Information he supplied resulted in the release of the only bona fide, official Air Force document confirming the reality of the December 1980 event. His service record is not available through either the U.S. Air Force or the National Military Archives. In 1981, it was classified on national security grounds and is held by the National Security Agency in Fort Meade Maryland.

In September 1994, Warren's passport was suspended by the U.S. State Department -- at the request of the Department of Defense -- for publicly "speaking out on sensitive issues on foreign soil." His passport was reissued only after former Attorney General Ramsey Clark took a serious interest in the case.

A variety of physical evidence supporting the reality of the incident is presented in Left at East Gate. This includes medical documentation from Warren and a soil analysis of the site of the incident. One of the results to be revealed is that the sand (silica) content of the affected sample has been reduced to glass.

A FIRST-HAND ACCOUNT OF THE BENTWATERS-WOODBRIDGE INCIDENT

A talk by Larry Warren and Peter Robbins

With more material evidence of an alien landing than was ever found at Roswell, New Mexico, the Bentwaters incident occurred less than 20 years ago in Great Britain, but, unlike Roswell, most people have never even heard of it.

In 1980, Larry Warren was an US Air Force security guard stationed at the RAF airbase in Rendlesham Forest, East Anglia. On the night of the UFO landing, he was ordered to 'drive to the east gate and turn left' to join other security personnel. He is convinced that what he then saw was a UFO and its occupants on the ground. The deputy commanding officer of the base was present and allegedly communicated with the aliens. Ground forces including Larry Warren were debriefed and ordered to 'forget' everything they had seen. The incident has since been denied by both US and UK military officials.

Angry at how his government subsequently dealt with him, Larry began to investigate the UFO phenomenon. In the mid-1980s, he met ufologist Peter Robbins, and they began a joint investigation into Warren's experience and the larger context in which it occurred.

Every Briton should hear or read their account of the evidence and the cover-up, and the even more worrying fact that these events all took place at a NATO nuclear arms store.

"I highly recommend this vitally important book."

A very British Roswell

Eye-witnesses to the most astonishing UFO sighting in Britain on national lecture tour

"Every Briton should hear about what we have seen, about what is being hidden from them by the authorities and ask the question why is this all going on at a nuclear arms store on British soil?"
Larry Warren, about his national lecture tour

Everyone has heard of the Roswell incident, the UFO sighting which happened in New Mexico exactly fifty years ago. But not many Britons realise that there is more material evidence of another alien landing which occurred less than twenty years ago in Great Britain.

In 1980, Larry Warren was an US Air Force security guard stationed at the RAF airbase in Rendlesham Forest, East Anglia. From 26 to 29 December, RAF Bentwaters and Woodbridge air bases had nightly visits of unusual flying objects. At first the lights were thought to be from an aircraft that had gone down in the vast expanse of pine forest, and the men were ordered to investigate.

On the night of December 28th, Warren drove into the forest with other security personnel. He then saw what he believes to have been a UFO and its occupants on the ground.

"As my mind tried to register what I was looking at, the ball of light exploded in a blinding flash. Shards of light and particles fell onto the fog. I couldn't move; I tried to cover my eyes, but it was too late." Larry Warren

Now thanks to local UFO research organisations, Warren and Robbins are to visit cities all around Britain to tell their story and to meet British people who have had similar experiences.

Warren and Robbins' account of their experiences is also to be published as a book entitled LEFT AT EAST GATE. As well as being an actual eyewitness account of a UFO sighting, the book also reveals something of the way in which the event has shaped the lives of all involved ever since. Warren and Robbins tell a riveting tale of unusual events, the abuse of power and one man's struggle to prove the truth as he sees it.

CARDIFF STUDENTS UNION,

WALES ONLY VENUE DATE
A unique chance to hear Larry Warren's first-hand account of a military encounter with a landed UFO!

About the speakers...

Larry Warren was a member of the US Air Force Security Police stationed at an American base on British soil and was taken from his guard post to investigate strange lights in a forest clearing near the base. Here he and other enlisted men and officers confronted an alien craft on the ground. Even the base deputy commander has come forward to verify some of the details in this case, making it one of the most talked about UFO cases of all time - A REAL BRITISH "ROSWELL".

Peter Robbins is an American writer and researcher who works with Budd Hopkins (famous for his research into the alien abduction phenomenon). Peter investigated the case for 9 years and is convinced that there is much we have not been told by either the UK or US governments about what happened in that Suffolk forest in December 1980.

IT SOUNDS rather like Suffolk's own episode of The X-Files.

In 1980 Larry Warren was a USAF security guard stationed at Bentwaters.

From December 26 to 29 December, he says the twin bases of Woodbridge and Bentwaters had nightly visits from unusual flying objects.

On the night of December 28, unexplained bright lights led observers to think that an aircraft must have had gone down in the forest nearby.

Larry drove into the forest with other security personnel to investigate.

In what became one of the most highly-publicised UFO "incidents" in this country, he claims to have witnessed an alien spacecraft and its occupants on the ground.

"As my mind tried to register what I was looking at, the ball of light exploded in a blinding flash. Shards of light and particles fell into the fog. I couldn't move. I tried to cover my eyes, but it was too late...."

Now, Larry has written a book about his experiences, and he and his co-author Peter Robbins are in Suffolk this weekend to promote it. Today, they will be speaking at the Corn Exchange, Ipswich, at 7.30 pm, and tomorrow they will be signing copies of the books at Woodbridge Books, Woodbridge, from 11am.

"Every Briton should hear what we have seen, ask about what is being hidden from them by the authorities, and ask the question: 'Why is all this going on at a nuclear arms store in East Anglia?'" says Larry.

Peter had been researching UFO sightings for some 12 years before he met Larry, at a UFO conference in Washington DC, in 1987.

He said Larry was "very compelling and very angry" and it was "extremely rare" for a veteran of the armed services to go public on such a subject and risk the "bad press and ridicule" that would inevitably follow.

"He was looking for somebody to co-author a book. I was looking for a good interview," said Peter. Left at East Gate (Michael O'Mara Books, £15.99) is the result.

"Larry said: 'All I want is an opportunity to tell my side of the story. You have full licence to dig into my history and my past, research any aspect, to see if you can prove I am not telling the truth.'"

And Peter says he tested the story from every angle.

"I was not sceptical as much as extremely guarded. My reputation as a writer rests on my ability to tell the truth."

The book has taken a long time, he says, because the story has been investigated exhaustively.

As the years progressed, he was amazed how much evidence came forward to back up Larry's claims, he said.

"If such things were able to be presented in a court of law, I am convinced it would stand on its own merit, and win the case."

The book was published in America in February, "and is selling better there every week," said Peter.

It has aroused tremendous interest and led to an appearance for the authors on one of the USA's biggest chat shows, with an audience of 75 million.

"So far all the reviews that have come in have been good," he said. "It is doing well, but we are actually more excited about it coming out in the UK. This is where it happened.

"All we ask is that people read it and decide for themselves."

Larry said they had returned to Rendlesham several times while researching the book.

"It is like having family, we have so many friends there now."

The two men will be in travelling all over Britain promoting the book throughout June, but Larry says the event in Ipswich is "the most important we are going to do."

"It is pretty hard to believe," he says. "We really care about the people. They deserve to know what is going on."

He says the Rendlesham incident has been reported "in about 43 books now," but "it never comes out accurately."

"I just wanted a clear, accurate record of what happened to me."

The book is not just an eyewitness account of the incident itself, but also looks at the way it has shaped the lives of all involved ever since..

Larry says the intelligence community has done its best to silence him.

"My passport was suspended for 11 years because I spoke about sensitive defence issues in a public place on foreign soil!" he protests.

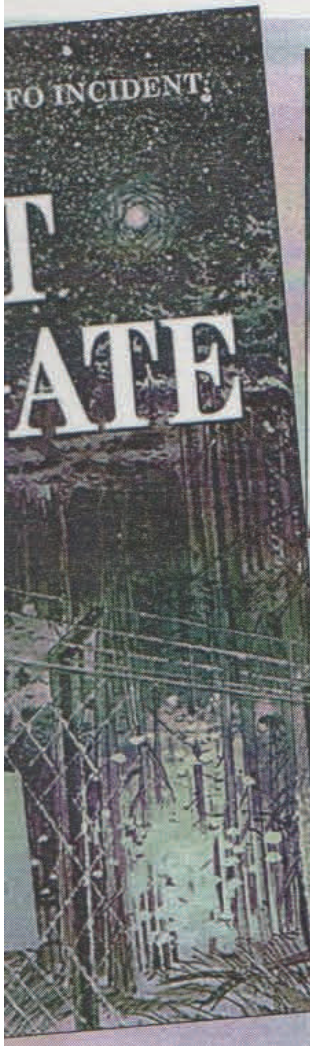

"There is not just smoke. There is fire. The reason the event confusion is bec aliens. That is w "It wasn't a ligh drugs and go ou He refers to two used in the year the Rendlesham This one won't it was, I don't k Detroit!"

reason the event has been surrounded in confusion is because it was real. There were aliens. That is what people don't like.
"It wasn't a lighthouse. We didn't smoke drugs and go out in the woods."
He refers to two of the theories most often used in the years since to try and "debunk" the Rendlesham "sighting."
This one won't go away. It was real. What it was, I don't know. But it wasn't built in Detroit!"
This month is the 50th anniversary of the Roswell incident, the alien "sighting" in New Mexico which sparked global interest in UFOs, and the subject has never been as high-profile as it is now, with programmes like The X-Files attracting huge audiences.
"There has been a change in consciousness," says Larry. "People in general are more open-minded." But he is quick to add: "I am very grounded. I am not into the New Age kind of thing, at all. But people are looking for answers to things. Most people have seen something strange.
"The debunkers are reacting out of fear."
Larry was 19 at the time of the Rendlesham incident.
"It certainly changed my life. It changed other lives."
And he believes that even though the airbase at Bentwaters has been shut down and sold for civilian use, it still keeps some secrets."There are still elements of that installation, a certain part of the base that will not be converted, that is not allowed to be touched, because there is something under there still active!"
He claims there was enormous defence significance to the Rendlesham event because at the time the Woodbridge base was the home of "the largest NATO stockpile of tactical battlefield nuclear weapons in Europe."
If the aliens had attacked and detonated that ordnance, he said, "It could have blown East Anglia to oblivion."

UFO fans are homing in

UFO enthusiasts from all over the region will be homing in on Nottingham tonight to hear about what is claimed to have been the biggest close encounter the East Midlands ever saw.

A former US Air Force security guard will give a first-hand account of the controversial Bentwaters-Woodbridge incident.

UFO investigators claim there was an alien landing outside an RAF airbase, in Rendlesham Forest, East Anglia, around Christmas 1980. It is often described as Britain's own version of the Roswell incident in 1947 — when an alien spacecraft is said to have come down in the New Mexico desert in the United States.

The incident has always been denied by US and UK defence officials.

Security guard Larry Warren, who claims to have come face to face with three aliens, has written a book detailing his experiences, in conjunction with investigator Peter Robbins.

The pair will be using slides to lift the lid on the affair tonight at Alderman Derbyshire School, Hucknall Lane, Bulwell, at 6pm.

Tony James, of the East Midlands UFO Research Association, said: "There was a huge cover-up by the Ministry of Defence and the US Air Force. It was three years even before the Press got hold of it and controversy has raged around it ever since. Something definitely went off there and something was definitely covered up."

UFO groups have been invited to the event and will be selling UFO magazines and collector's items.

"It will be the biggest event for UFO enthusiasts in the East Midlands ever seen," said Mr James.

Face to face with black-eyed aliens

"AS MY mind tried to register what I was looking at, the ball of light exploded in a blinding flash. I couldn't move; I tried to cover my eyes, but was too late. Now, right in front of me was a machine occupying the spot where the fog had been."

No, this isn't an excerpt from some science-fiction novel. They're the words of Larry Warren, former United States Air Force security guard and self-proclaimed UFO eye-witness, in his new book Left at East Gate.

At a West Midland theatre tonight, he will be describing his experiences.

By SALLY-ANNE SWIFT

Warren claims to have seen first-hand the arrival of a UFO in a field, not in some obscure New Mexico town, but in the heart of rural Suffolk.

He also claims to have seen its alien occupants: "They were small, about three to four feet tall, and somewhat ghostlike in appearance. They had large heads with cat-like black eyes."

Warren, together with ufologist Peter Robbins, has spent the past ten years documenting his experiences and the result is the hefty 490-page volume. In it they claim to have more evidence to support their story than was ever found at Roswell, New Mexico, where the remains of a crashed UFO were said to have been found exactly 50 years ago.

And they claim the whole thing was the subject of a massive cover-up operation on behalf of the British and American governments. Warren was stationed at RAF Bentwaters, one of Suffolk's largest Nato bases, in December 1980. One night he says he was ordered to drive to the east gate and turn left (hence the title of the book) to join other security personnel.

His story, in brief, is that he saw an alien craft land and strange beings emerge from it. Afterwards, he says, he and his colleagues were debriefed and told to forget everything they saw.

Warren went public about his experience after he received an honourable discharge from the Air Force. Seventeen years later it has been set down in black and white for all to see.

ROBBINS says: "We have not written this book for UFO buffs. We have written it for everyone. It's a very human story."

Sceptics have put the alleged sighting down to a distant lighthouse, the planets Jupiter and Saturn, stars, a fireball or satellite re-entry. But Warren says he is unperturbed by the fact that some people will dismiss his book as nonsense.

"When they get a sense of the amount of evidence we have got they should know that this one can't be challenged," he says.

And he denies he is after a place on the best-sellers list.

"We do not care about best-sellers, that's not the issue. We have spent most of the money we had on this and I have experienced repercussions because of my public position. There has been a price to pay but it's worth it to change people's attitudes."

• Left At East Gate is published by Michael O'Mara Books (£15.99). Larry Warren and Peter Robbins are touring the UK talking about the book and will be at the Red Rose Theatre in Taylors Lane, Rugeley, at 7.30pm tonight.

X FILES COVER-UP AT AIR BASE

By ROBERT KELLAWAY

A FORMER US Air Force corporal has lifted the lid on the biggest UFO cover-up ever to take place on British soil.

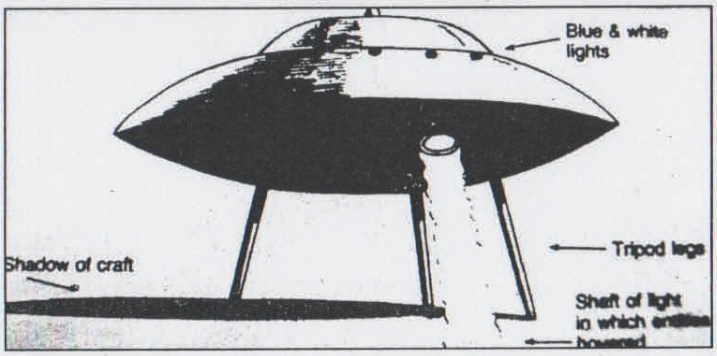

Hundreds of servicemen at an RAF base leased to the Americans were silenced following a terrifying alien encounter which lasted three days.

Scores of recordings on video and audio tape were destroyed or confiscated by US security services following the incidents, it is claimed.

Now the security police corporal, Larry Warren, who witnessed the encounter, has written a full account.

But in the latest twist to the cover-up he and co-author Peter Robbins have been prevented from discussing it on ITV's Strange But True Live on Friday by a former USAF colonel who refused to appear on the show if they did as well.

Larry, 35, recalled exclusively for The People the night in December 1980 when an alien force descended on RAF Bentwaters, in Suffolk, a major NATO installation. The incident began when lights were seen dropping out of the sky into Rendlesham Forest alongside the base on Boxing Day in 1980.

OUT OF THIS WORLD: Sketch of the Rendlesham Forest incident drawn by an airman who witnessed it

Larry, then 19, said: "Hundreds of Air Force personnel were involved in this incident. A search party was ordered out. They encountered a triangular object which darted between trees and appeared instantaneously in front of them.

"When the group was finally found by a second search party four hours later, they believed they had only been missing for 60 minutes. I became involved on the third night. We were driven out in a truck to a field where we saw a perfect circle of mist 50ft across and 1ft high.

"At that moment, movement became slow, and I saw one airman sink to his knees, clasp his hands to his forehead and burst into tears. Video and movie footage of this phenomenon were being taken by USAF men throughout the incident.

"We saw a red light in the sky. Then, in a flash, the mist disappeared and in its place stood a pyramid-type object 20ft high and 30ft across.

"It was a kind of mother-of-pearl colour and if you looked straight at it the image dissolved. We became aware of three non-human beings floating about 1ft off the ground.

"They were 4ft tall, with ghost-like faces, were dressed and had arms but had no legs."

Larry was taken back to RAF Bentwaters. "We were taken into underground areas, brainwashed and treated with drugs for 24 hours.

"We were told, 'Keep your mouth shut. You have witnessed something that is classified. You can be silenced with bullets if necessary, they are very cheap'.

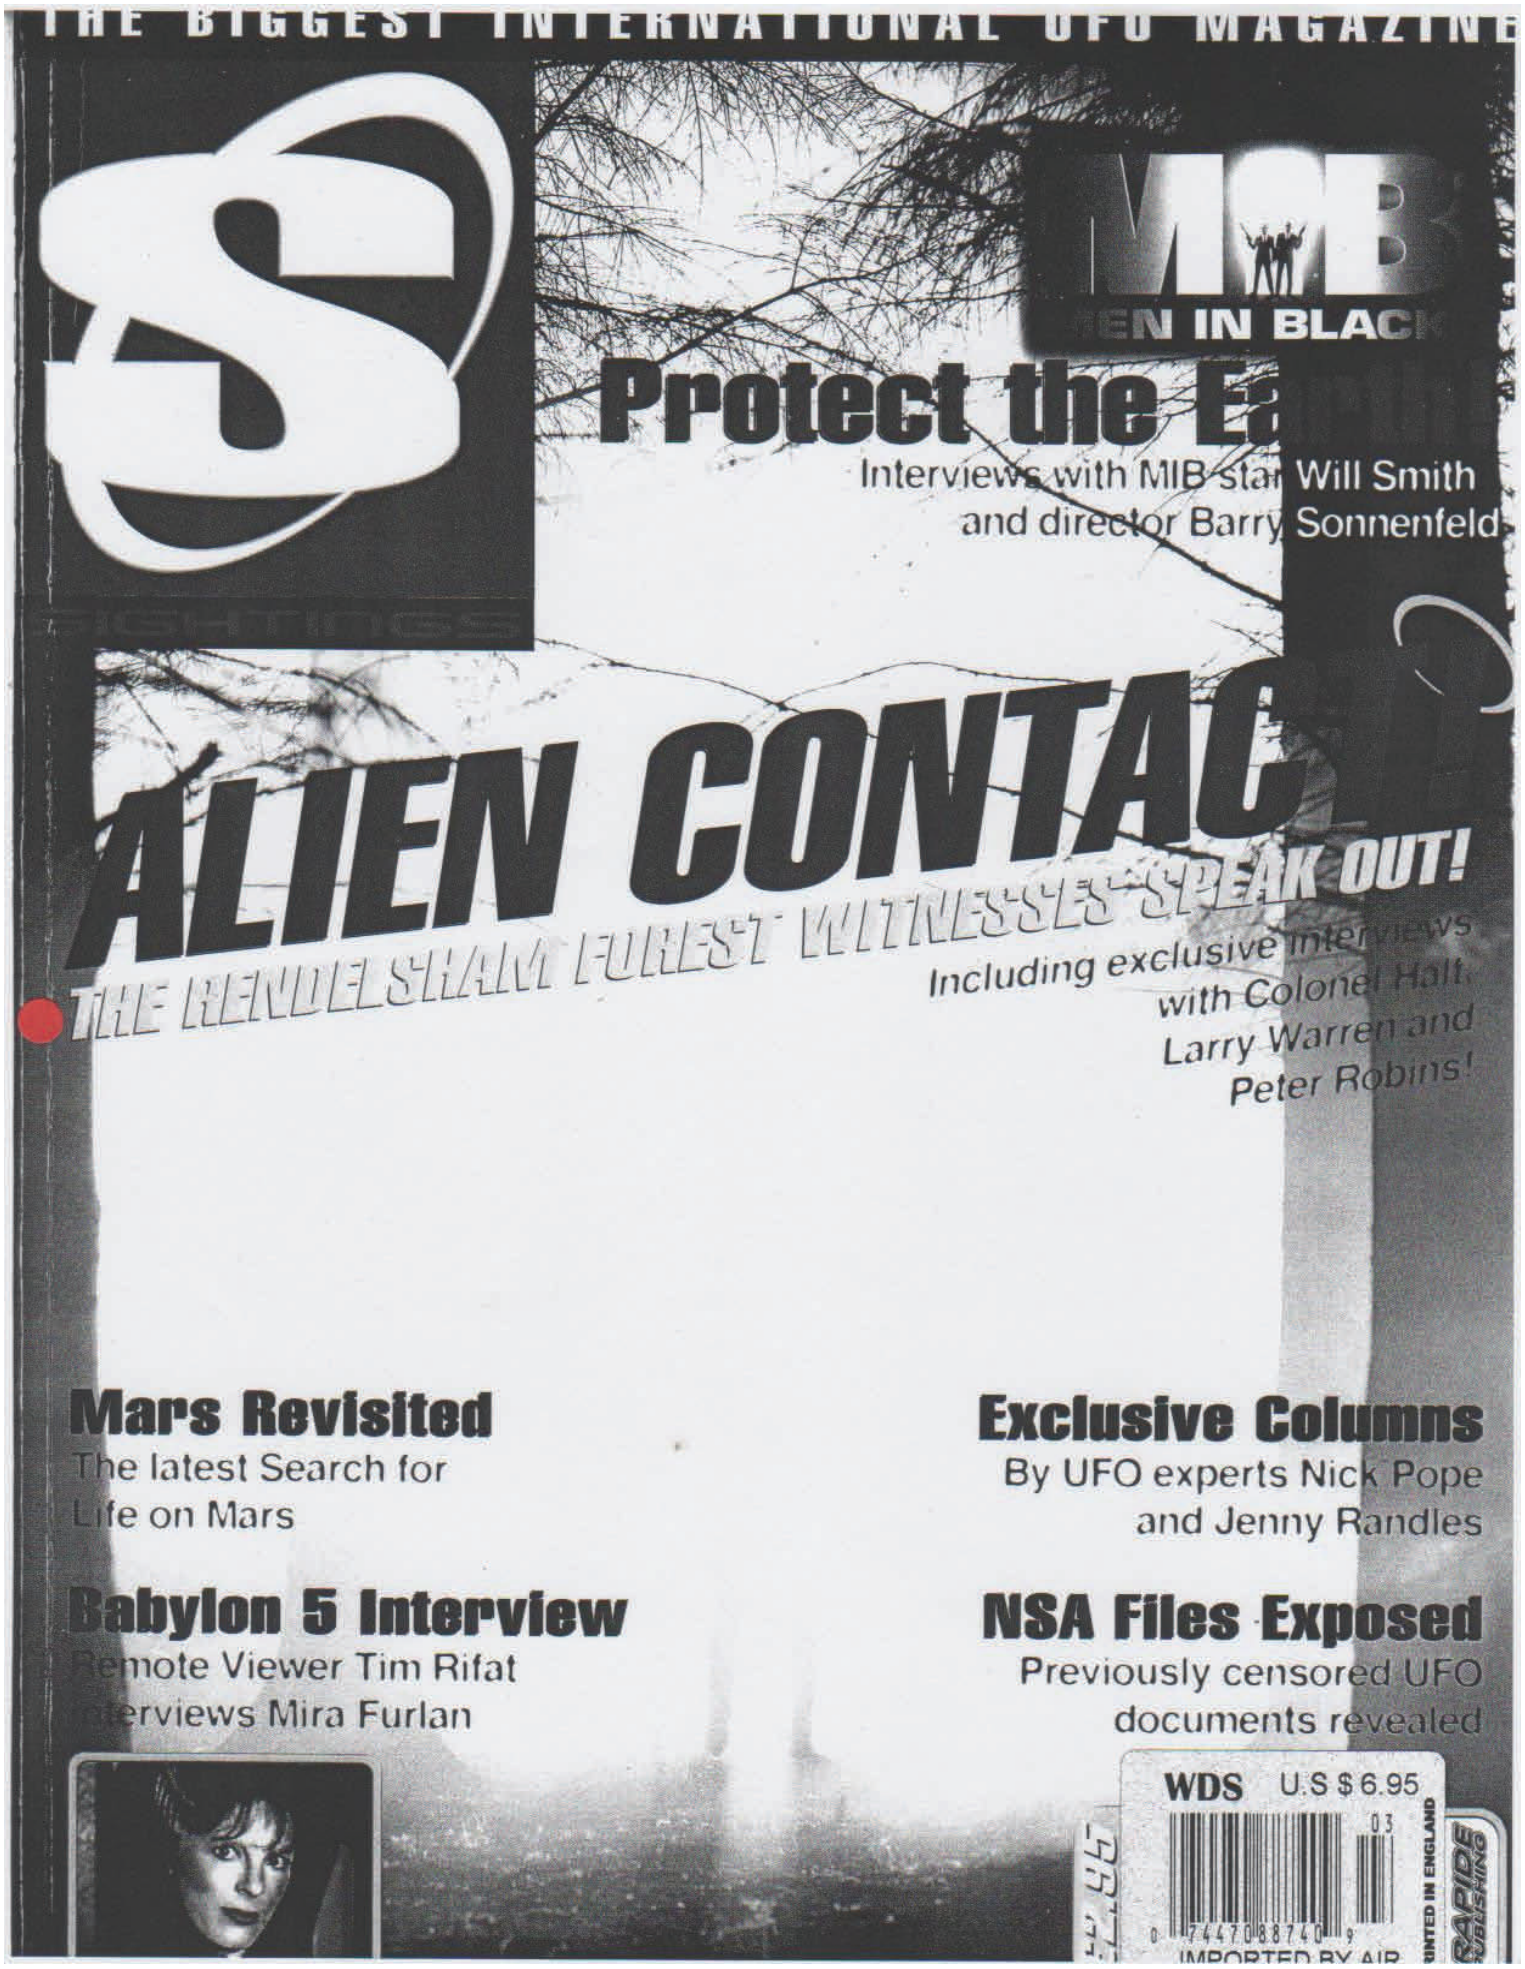

"They tried to make us so confused and scared in a 24-hour debriefing session that we would sound like lunatics if we ever tried to tell the truth."

After a series of misadventures, mostly to do with the vagaries of British Telecom, it took over a week before I finally managed to interview Peter and Larry. Eventually, one rainy Thursday morning the interviews took place. I ended up with nearly three times as much data as I needed, so here is an edited version of our conversation (The rest if you are interested I printed in my fanzine 'The Goblin Universe').

Left, Larry Warren, right, Peter Robbins: The two joined together in a writing relationship and produced a book based on the Rendlesham Forest UFO landing incident, entitled 'Left at East Gate'

Peter Robbins

Jon: It has been ten years now since you started this project...

Peter: This past weekend...Larry and I met in Washington DC and this coming weekend, July, is when we shook hands.

Jon: On your first trip to Suffolk with Larry, the two of you had a major UFO experience of your own. You must have thought 'what am I getting into?'

Peter: Yeah, I did. I felt potentially compromised as a non-fiction writer. I know that when people hear of this account or read it in a book, there is a tendency to think, 'gee, what a lucky break for a researcher to have a sighting so close to the incident you are researching...' I can only say again, my objectivity had been compromised. I was curious and I was fascinated. It was amazing; it had vindicated any minor questions I had about the activity. Larry was really good about it. It's in the book – I thought long and hard for months about whether we should include it for that very reason. We even thought about changing the date because if it hadn't taken place on our first night in Suffolk, maybe it would have seemed more believable. But that's a lie. And you lie once; and you're a liar!

By the same token we couldn't do a brief treatment of it.

I've spent a great deal of time listening and re-listening to the tape and transcribing it absolutely as it happened. And knowing full well that this would make the ankle-biters, (as I call them), grow absolutely rattled. But it certainly adds to the value, I think, ultimately of the book. To the credibility of the pair of us.

Jon: Larry had a long series of sightings going back to his childhood.

Peter: I can tell you, as someone supplementing their work as a researcher and lucky enough to work in a related, although different field, almost the whole time I've been working on the book with Larry. I know this is part of the pattern of the way these incidents happen. Some people see things that other people don't, that check out ultimately, and it's just the way it is. To me it's almost a non-point but I know to some readers it may be more significant.

Jon: Do you think that you would have had that particular experience if you had been there with Larry?

Peter: The bottom line is, 'I have no idea,' and it is a rather chilling thought. I think, you know, my rational mind says, 'hey, this goes on – we were there at that moment; and it happened.' And that's it. You can fit it into infinity and many scenarios, but unless somebody presents me with information that backs up one of them...I'm a very conservative person, and I'm a very methodical researcher. One of my inspirations was Conan-Doyle. I read all the Holmes books as a kid and I will look at the absolutely mundane and work my way up to the incredible. A good example is when we went into the field for the first time and Larry's arm shot out and hit the thing stacked right there. You know the part I'm talking about.

My first thought was not, 'Oh wow, landing trace, eight years two months later.' I know it can happen but that was not my first thought. My first thought was, 'Hmmm...Well, maybe a farmer finally dumped a load of nitrates in the field a couple of years earlier

and it's never fully integrated. Maybe it's a fertiliser spot, a play of light, or a lightning strike.' And it was not until informal analysis, later confirmed by formal analysis, proved that something profoundly physical had happened there.

Until presented otherwise, I'm going to go with the chance probability theory here, although some people may think I'm deluding myself. The main thing is that it happened. We were together and I'm stuck with it. It's part of my life now and it makes this part of England much more interesting to be in than it otherwise would have been. I love Suffolk and I have some of the dearest friends I will ever have in my life here. I consider them to be family; and I will come back here and to the UK for the rest of my life.

...informal analysis, later confirmed by formal analysis, proved that something profoundly physical had happened there.

Jon: This part of Suffolk's particularly old and weird?

Peter: You bet, and you know better than I. There's many reasons why the book took a long time to do, but I can tell you for a fact, for the first few years one of the things I was very busy with was separating the threads. I think that this had been somewhat confounding to folks that had pioneered what was going on here. I read the work of the original researchers and tried to make as much sense of it as I could.

Suffolk is rich in history and lore as everyone knows. It is also an area that occult scholars cite as the area where what we understand as the Anglo-Saxon/Wiccan tradition sprang from. It is also an area with a long history of weapons tests, research and development in dark operations. Radar was perfected twelve or fifteen miles from the site of the incident for example. The American Stealths were deployed here a number of years before any of us in the States were aware of them. This material makes a wonderful stew, especially when combined with other paranormal aspects such as there are a high number of incidents of UFO sightings. So it is a pretty rich place for these phenomena, and if you sort of blend it together it creates its own confounding aspects, something that's almost approaching disinformation.

So you do have to be scrupulous and kind of follow things back, like you would in a paper chase, right to the source, and see what is germane and relevant and move past the rest in assembling your data.

Jon: What sort of reaction have you been getting from the lecture tour that you did to promote the book?

Larry: The people were terrific. They are only just starting to see the size of this thing that had been obscured. We were starting to see the scope of this event, what those bases were all about. In fact in the base yesterday: I jumped the wire, went in with some crazy guys who wanted to get some footage; it was great to be back inside. It was very interesting, dodging 'security' and all. I've been coming back here for years and years, doing the book; but to get back inside...(gasps in mock awe). We were with an ex-SAS guy and some other people, and we were able to see quite how large what had once been the weapons storage area was. People just didn't know what we had stored up there.

The point of all this is that these events were of defence-significance – no matter what version one wants to accept. I think there's a great effort going on presently to minimalise the event, as usual, but I don't think it's working too well. People are a lot smarter than the powers-that-be give them credit for. I found out this past month.

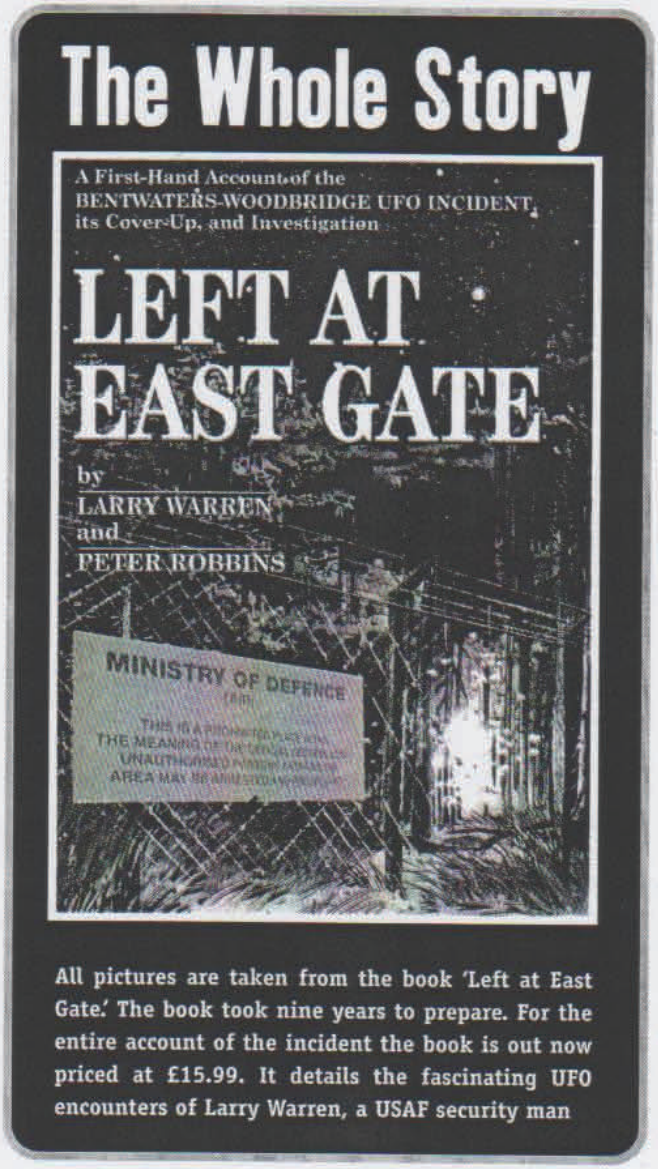

Jon: Why do you think that you get so many UFO experiences?

Larry: They like me? (laughs). I don't know. I touched on it in the book but I didn't go into a lot of depth. There were a lot of things that I didn't put into the book or forgot to, like my last chapter because we were on a helluva schedule. That thing on the railroad tracks when I was a kid, when these things floated up – last year I actually went back after thirty years or so, just to look at it. Boy, it was just as I remembered it.

Eventually my mother got to see some things as well, but it wasn't an interest of hers beforehand either. I still have these things in my life. I didn't need Bentwaters to happen to me – I would have been just as happy just having these phenomena in my life and I had no need to integrate myself into these events.

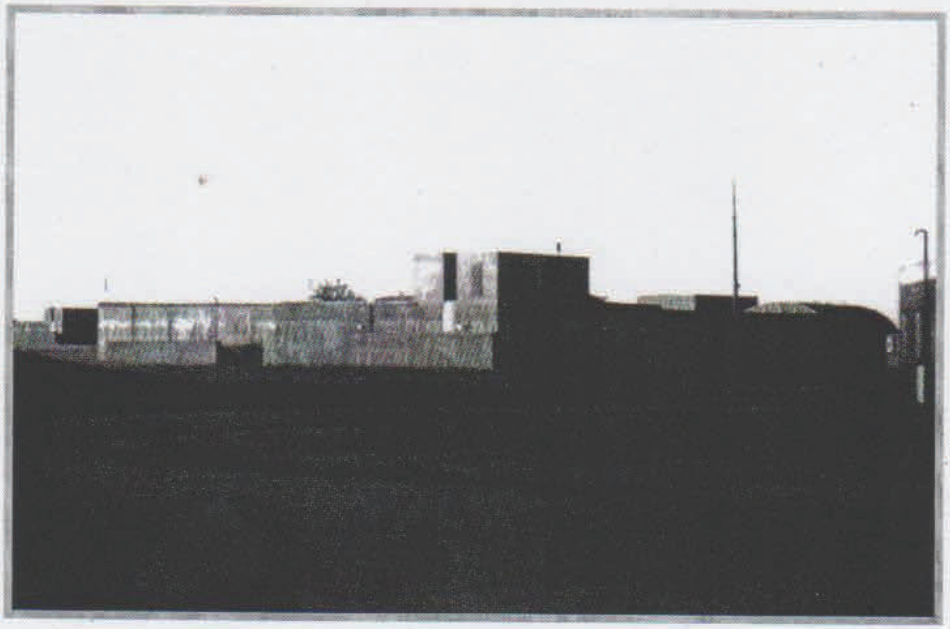

I wish I'd never gone into the airforce in some regards. I wasn't military-minded to begin with – I was a rock & roller and that was it. So I didn't need Bentwaters. I could probably do a book on just stuff that's happened in my life, much like Strieber or anyone else who has been touched by this phenomenon, whatever it is – I don't know where it's from or what it's about. I'd like to know.

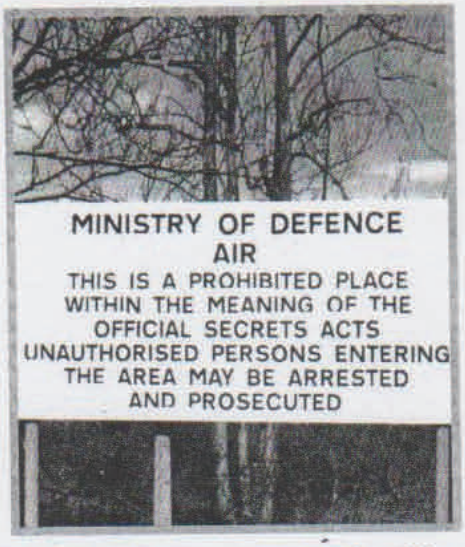

The thing at Bentwaters could be one of a number of things. I, frankly agree with Halt on the fact that something/someone else is there. At the very least. And, er, I dunno, I can't explain why it's been in my life; I wasn't the only witness to the things up here that had previous experience. I still have this stuff happen occasionally. I just don't have memories of being up in flying saucers and that kind of thing. But a lot of things occur in the bedroom, and I have had people in my life see this stuff; and the best thing about the book is that my friends and family – my peers – they're like now: 'I see. Now things make sense.' And that was wonderful. Whether it's good or bad I don't know. That phenomena hasn't particularly hurt me other than that Bentwaters – I was too close to it.

All pictures are taken from the book 'Left at East Gate.' The book took nine years to prepare. For the entire account of the incident the book is out now priced at £15.99. It details the fascinating UFO encounters of Larry Warren, a USAF security man

The detractors have to ask, 'why does this guy show signs of radiation?', 'why does he have eye damage?', 'Why was his military record classified?' (which it is, and Halt knows that). Why was his passport suspended?'. 'Why? Why? Why?' I haven't heard any counter explanations, even from Halt, which makes any sense, other than as word games. I think that he's in a very different role, in a sense, I think he's some kind of patsy – and I don't mean that disrespectfully.

I have nothing against the man at all, and I don't think that he has against me either. I just wish that he'd come out and freely say just what went on up here. If I found out tomorrow that this had all been one big mind control experiment, and that all of us were 'meddled with' as Mr. Halt alludes to, I could live with that, but it is just important to ask, what possible benefit it could have been for them to do that to us? We would then have a huge lawsuit!

It doesn't have to be a UFO thing, but as far as I am concerned, yes, someone else is here, there is a presence here. You've read the book – it's basically as I said how it happened to me. That's why I have avoided telling other guy's stories. You meet a few other people there, but it is up to them to come out and say what's happened to them. I know other elements that have happened to guys, that have never become public yet, but it is up to them to come out and join the fray!

Jon: You can't do it for them can you?

Larry: They have to do it themselves. I've built some things into the book, specifically designed as triggers to get actual witnesses to come forward. There are a few little key things to get them to come forward if they choose to. Already it's worked with two, and I expect a great deal more to come forward. There have been local people here in the Ipswich area, and in the areas around the bases who feel finally vindicated in that they can come forward and say things that they've seen in the area, or things that happened around December 1980. These things weren't just lights in the sky! The whole paper trail has been one massive lie from day one, on the Air Force's side and from the Government above them. This is particularly my government – I think that they were bad guys. I think that the MoD were just kept out of the loop. I really do.

Jon: Do you think that this ties in wit other paranormal phenomena that hav been reported in the area over the years

Larry: I think that there must be connection with the paranormal – becaus of things that have happened in my life. would not be surprised at all. I believe i ghosts, bigfoot and all sorts of oth things. I'm much more open minded than was even ten years ago. Even I was sceptic. Scepticism is great, but I still ha parts of me that I got to the point where was telling the thing but still not puttir my mind to it!

This is so far beyond description that think that the ghost stories and oth things that have been reported here (a indeed in other parts of the world) do lir up with the UFO thing. Maybe UFOs opera in this realm. There may be an inte dimensional thing – they don't have to co from other planets at all, so I am sure th there has to be some kind of a tie.

Jon: It's just part of the way things a isn't it?

Larry: I think so. I'm not a UFO researcl at all. I just set out to do this book beca I have seen the thing so misrepresented books where I have allegedly talked full circle. There are two ladies in this area, Brenda Butler and Dot Street who were the original researchers on the case back in 1981. Same people try to spin everyone against each other just to try and keep up the controversy, and I found just the contrary, and that despite what I had been led to believe about these two women – none of it was true. Although I disagree with certain points of view they have – it's a free world and they are very nice people. They have had a very hard time because of their involvement in this, and it was a great pleasure to meet Brenda Butler and to get to know her as a person. A lot of people pay a great price for getting too close to the damn thing.

Jon: How do you explain the differences between your account and those of Colonel Halt?

Larry: Mr. Halt is going to be on London Weekend Television tomorrow, and although I was originally scheduled to be on the TV show with him I was banned. I could have got very angry about that but I still feel somewhat perturbed because I feel that Mr. Halt believes that he has to minimalise the importance of the events. The long and the short of it is, still, that he is taking the 'pro' side. He is on the right side, and so I have told everybody to support him!

March 1994 – Peter Robbins and Larry Warren stand at the sight where the incident occurred on the third night

Halt has an agreement with the TV company that he won't appear on the same show as me. His point of view is that I couldn't have been working at Bentwaters when I said that I was. He says that the security police came over to these bases and just sat around for ten weeks being put 'on flight', which is totally ridiculous. Air Force people would just laugh at that! It's two weeks of training and then just OJT. I have all the documentation putting me on duty that night and he knows that! On the other side, he comes out and says that I (and others) were meddled with. He is an enigma in himself. I wish him well. This isn't personal, but like I've said, he's doing his job and I'm doing mine. We're both working towards the same ends.

I think that what he feels about it, is that the more radical elements in my story (and those of a few others) are something the public is not ready for yet. He has said as much right to us. Unfortunately he has been placed in a role of having to support the assumptions and to play them down. It's part of the psychology.

It's like the Air Force's new assumptions about Roswell. Until yesterday, I didn't frankly, know what to think about Roswell. I think that there are too many stories and that it has all become too much involved with 'big business'. When I heard, however, that they are claiming that dummies were thrown out of a plane, it means that they really DID find bodies. Even the straight, hard nosed media doesn't seem to believe the weather balloon y'know.

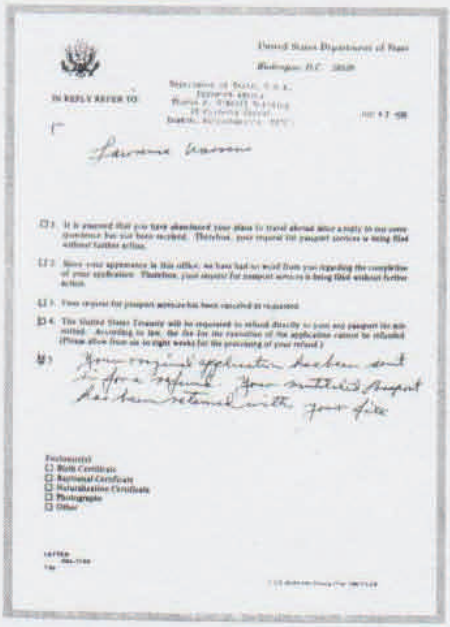

I have this motto. The cover up began in June 1947 and ended in June 1997. It really has. I think the story is out of the bag and that the governments are going to be the last to realise it as usual. I think that you could take our book (if things were decided like that in a court of law) either here or in the States, and I think that we would get a verdict in our favour, even from a hard nosed, sceptical jury.

I just focused on me in this thing, but I think that I should diminish in importance. I should not be a focus. I should just draw attention back to these events. Researchers could have blown the lid off this fifteen years ago but they decided to drop the ball. We've given them another chance. Let's see if the UFO research community is worth its salt!

Jon: Do you think that it is?

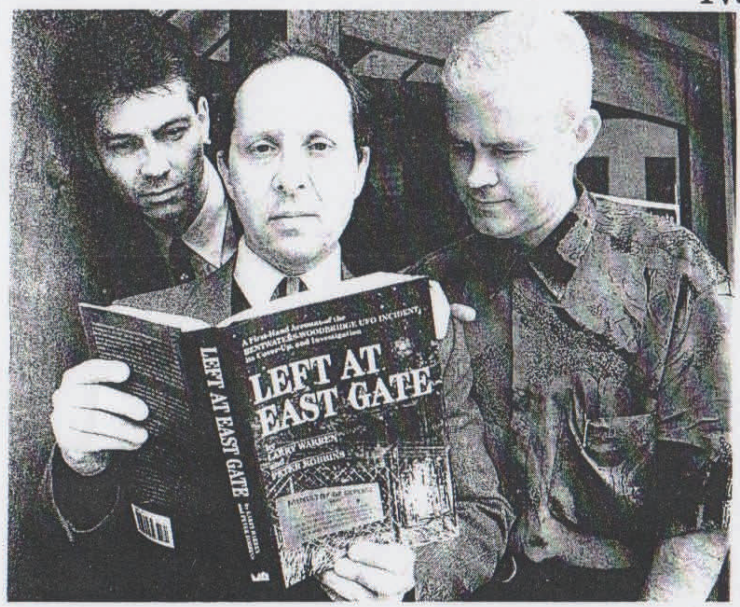

Larry: I think that it is too rife with schisms and factions. I refer to it as the 'Beirut of the paranormal'. I think that if people join together, even with their divergence of options, they would become a force to be reckoned with.

I think that the hierarchy of the UFO community are hidebound like a bunch of mummies in a tomb somewhere. Once they go, I think that the younger generation that's coming up will pull the whole thing together. I'm not a member of any organisation – never have been, never will be – but I am an advocate for witnesses. I believe that they can write their own stories. Hopefully this book will be a signpost or warning saying, 'If you want to go public this is what will happen to you'. A witness to something like what happened at Bentwaters should go forth very carefully because this is what will happen. If you can survive that and accept that then go for it... S

The Crosby Herald recently featured a report about the fifth Merseyside UFO Conference in Liverpool.

Topics ranged from UFO cases in Merseyside to the UFO crash at Rendlesham Forest — this century's most controversial incident.

In December 1980, were you aware that all of Europe's NATO bases were put on Red Alert and that an alien encounter in Suffolk caused widespread panic?

Well Larry Warren does.

He was a 19-year-old US Airforce Security Policeman based at Brentwater, Suffolk, one of NATO's largest bases. And eventually the key witness to Rendlesham Forest.

Now, in a book entitled "Left At East Gate" Larry, with co-author Peter Robbins, gives a account of the encounter and the cover u which inevitably followed.

Peter claims his job is now done: "It's up t the readers now," he adds.

The Crosby Herald this week gives thr lucky readers the chance to win a copy of th explosive book worth £15.99 each.

U.S. airman's shocking book blows lid off ...

INTERNATIONAL UFO COVER-UP

Airman Larry Warren in 1980

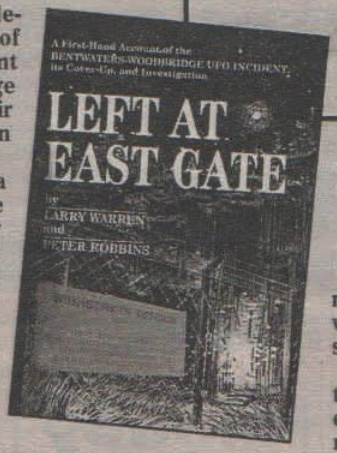

The field in which airman Warren had his alien encounter

An alien craft landed near U.S. airbase in 1980 & two governments hid the truth!

By ANN LIBERTY

GOVERNMENT and military leaders in the U.S. and Great Britain terrorized an American serviceman in a sinister attempt to cover up a UFO landing, a blockbuster new book reveals.

Deep in England's Rendlesham Forest on the night of December 28, 1980, an event occurred that would change the life of 19-year-old U.S. Air Force recruit Larry Warren forever.

"In front of me was a strange machine in the shape of a pyramid," Warren, now 36, recalls in his book, Left At East Gate (Marlowe & Co.). "The main body was pearl white, with a rainbow-color effect.

"At the base was a bank of bright cobalt-blue lights. Below that was a landing gear.

"Covering the entire surface, which seemed to constantly change shape, were what looked like boxes, pipes and strange extensions."

With Warren were fellow servicemen from RAF Bentwaters and Woodbridge, two nearby NATO bases run by the U.S. Air Force. The men stood, staring in awe, as a ball of blue light moved away from the pyramid and hovered a foot above the ground.

Suddenly, Warren saw a life form. "I saw their eyes," he says. "And, as the glow slowly faded, their features became clearer.

"They were 3 to 4 feet tall, with large heads and cat-like black eyes. They appeared ghostlike, not human, yet somehow I wasn't frightened."

The Bentwaters-Woodbridge incident was the last of three intense nights of UFO sightings in the area.

On the first night, one witness vanished after an encounter — and to this day has never been found. On the second night, the ETs remained airborne, conducting what appeared to be grid searches of the area.

In the aftermath, the military launched a massive cover-up of the sightings. Warren and the other men were taken to an underground bunker, where he was sedated and brainwashed before being released.

"We were told that we were not to discuss the incident with anybody," he confides. "A court-martial faced us if we did."

Undaunted, Warren tried to call his mother in Glens Falls, N.Y., but the call was intercepted.

The military branded him a troublemaker and discharged him.

As a civilian, his phone was tapped, his service records were marked restricted and the FBI suddenly had no record of his birth. Helicopters loomed over his house and strange vans parked outside taking photos. His passport was officially suspended.

Using an alias, he finally told his story to the press in 1983 — and sent U.S. and British authorities scrambling to cover up the incident.

British Defense Minister Michael Heseltine denied the whole affair, saying: "There is not a grain of truth about a cover-up of alleged UFO sightings. There was no contact with alien beings, nor any unidentified object."

The military alternately claimed the lights were from an air transporter, a light house, a bomb, a plan crash and a drug party, say Warren.

But Col. Charles Halt, a eyewitness to the sightin who'd initially denied it al now admits it was an un earthly encounter.

"Here I am, a senior o ficial who routinely denie this sort of thing and work to debunk them," he says "And I'm involved in th middle of something I can explain."
